

Dr. McGuire New Academic Dean 76 Students Reside In Hammerman

Administrative Changes

The first lay dean in the 115 year history of Loyola College heads a list of summer appointees to administrative positions.

Dr. Francis J. McGuire, chairman of the Chemistry Department since 1965, has replaced Rev. Henry St. C. Lavin, S.J., as Dean of Studies. Father Lavin has joined the English department faculty at the University of Scranton.

A native Baltimorean, Dr. McGuire graduated from Mt. St. Joseph High School, and received his B.S. degree, cum laude, from Loyola College in 1954.

Dr. McGuire was a DuPont Fellow at the Johns Hopkins University where he pursued graduate studies in chemistry from 1954 to 1961, receiving his M.A. degree in 1956 and his Ph.D. in 1961.

Rev. William G. Kelly, S.J., is the new Academic Vice-President of Loyola College. Fr. Kelly was previously Academic Vice-President of Scranton University.

J. Brian Becker is the new Treasurer of Loyola College. He succeeds Francis A. Gallagher.

Mr. Becker, a native of Baltimore, received his B.S. degree in Business Accounting from Drexel Institute of Technology in 1959.

Edward R. Johnston is the new Director of Admissions at Loyola College; Rev. E. Paul Betowski, S.J., will be Associate Director of Admissions.

Dr. Francis McGuire

Mr. Johnston, a native of Ohio, obtained his Bachelor's degree at Spring Hill College, and his Master's at the University of Detroit. For the past four years, he was Director of Admissions at Baltimore Junior College.

The Rev. E. Paul Betowski, S.J., obtained his Bachelor's degree at Georgetown University before entering the Society of Jesus. He is the Director of Hammerman House, Loyola's new dormitory.

Hammerman House, the first Loyola residence hall, is shown near completion in time for the dedication on October 15th. The dorm now houses 76 students and will accommodate more upon completion of construction on the lower two floors.

Top Two Floors Filled

With the opening of Hammerman House, Loyola College's first dormitory, a new era begins at Evergreen. For the first time in the history of the college, on campus boarders become a reality thanks to the generosity of

S. L. Hammerman, one of the major benefactors of the school in recent years.

The dormitory, an imposing four story, red brick building, is located on the North Campus Annex, previously known as "the new property."

At present, only the top two floors are fit for habitation, but final completion has been promised in time for the scheduled dedication on Oct. 15. These two floors, however, are more than ample for the 59 freshman, 10 sophomores, 4 juniors and 3 seniors who comprise this historic first class of "dormies."

The position of head prefect is being filled by Father E. Paul Betowski, S. J. an experienced dorm administrator with 17 years of service in a similar position at Georgetown. Fr. Betowski is assisted in this capacity by upperclass prefects headed by senior Frank Conn.

The resident's reaction to life at Loyola has been mixed. For the most part they agree that quiet atmosphere at Evergreen and the well structured rooms, lend themselves to increased study.

The weekday curfew for upperclassmen is 11:00 a.m., while the weekend deadline is 2:00 a.m.

The freshman curfew is one half hour earlier both on weekdays and weekends.

This has stirred some grumbling among the freshmen.

Food, in particular the amounts thereof, has been a topic of widespread and varied comment.

Problems In Belief Opens Oct. 1; Louis Dupre to Initiate Seminar

In response to the call of Pope Paul VI for a Year of Faith, Loyola College's "Problems in Belief" Seminar will undertake a year of reflection and discussion on the meaning of faith in the life of a contemporary Christian.

Louis Dupre will present the year's first lecture on Sunday, October 1, at 3 p.m., in Cohn Hall. His subject will be "The Meaning of Faith in a Secular World."

At 8:00 p.m. in the evening following each lecture this year, there will be a closed seminar with that day's speaker. Since the seminar must be limited in size, any students who are interested in taking part are urged to attend a meeting this Wednesday, Sept. 27, which will be held in Xavier Hall at noon. (Attendance at this meeting is necessary for any student interested.)

Mr. Stephen McNierney, the program moderator, has called Louis Dupre "the most important Catholic philosopher in America today." Many upperclassmen will recall Mr. Dupre from his book, "The Philosophical Foundations of Marxism," which has been used in Loyola's philosophy program.

Throughout the remainder of the year distinguished Roman Catholic thinkers in the areas of philosophy, scripture, liturgy, moral theology, catechetics, and social doctrine are being invited to give public lectures on the implications of developments within their areas upon the lives of Christians.

Tentative schedule for the remainder of the year is:

Nov. 5—John L. McKenzie, S.J.—"Scripture in the Life of Faith."
Dec. 3—Godfrey Diekmann, O.S.B.—"Prayer and Sacrament."

Feb. 11—Gregory Baum, C.S.A.—"The Freedom of Faith and the Teaching Authority of the Church."

March 11 — Charles Curran — "Faith and the Freedom of the Moral Conscience."

April 7—Daniel Callahan—"Faith and the Social Function of the Church."

May 5—Gerard Sloyan—"The Future of Faith."

Public lectures will be held on Sunday afternoons at 3:00 p.m. in Cohn Hall. The closed seminars will be held the same evenings at 8:00 p.m. in the Student lounge.

Humanities, Students Honored at Convocation

Dr. C. Barnaby Keeney, Chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities, discussed the challenges of a rapidly changing era at the Fall Honors Convocation held on Thursday, September 14, in the gym.

The Very Rev. Joseph A. Selinger, S.J., President, presented academic honors to undergraduates for outstanding accomplishment.

Seniors receiving awards were Joseph Jimramovsky, Wendell Jackson, and Gerard Smith.

Juniors receiving awards were James Schiaffino, Harry Merriken, David Townsend, and Charles Schemm.

Admitted to Alpha Sigma Nu,

National Jesuit Honor Society, were Anthony Cusimano, Charles Schemm, Robert Gaare, David Townsend, and John Weetankamp.

The United States Army band played a special selection, "A Spoonful of Sugar Makes the Medicine Go Down."

Dr. Keeney in his address entitled "The Uses of the Humanities," warned that often our ideas and ways of thinking do not keep pace with the progress of our science and technology.

Dr. Keeney said that the duty and the opportunity of the humanities are to guide us in choosing the goods to be obtained by applying science.

Dr. Keeney, humorously emphasizing the opportunity for the humanities, said that he once thought that the late 13th century was "the most interesting time in which I lived . . . but now I'm sure the late 20th century is the most interesting in which I lived."

Greyhound Announces New Publication Day

With the exception of this issue, the Loyola College newspaper, The GREYHOUND, will appear on Monday of each week.

In the past The GREYHOUND had lost contact with its readers over the weekend which followed its publication.

This change will enable the newspaper to be more useful to the student within the week of its appearance. Emphasis in reporting will be placed more on upcoming events than on past issues.

Any comments or suggestions will be appreciated by the staff.

Loyola Receives Grant in Bailey Will

Loyola College became this summer the recipient of the legacy of the late John L. Bailey.

By the terms of his will, the legacy, valued at approximately $300,000 is to be used for the establishment of a perpetual scholarship fund.

This fund, a memorial to Mr. Bailey's deceased wife, will be known as "The Claudia Northrop Bailey Scholarship Fund."

The income from this fund is to be used for the education of deserving students, regardless of religion or creed.

The selection of scholarships will be left to the decision of the authorities of the College.

Fifteen New Names on Faculty Roll; Eleven Departments Gain Members

Loyola welcomes fifteen new faculty members to teach in ten different fields this year.

Dr. Yau Pik Chau has become a Professor of Economics and is joined in that department by Fr. William Byron, a specialist in urban economic factors, who will be an assistant professor.

English Adds Two
The English Department will welcome Mr. Mark Gnerro, and Mr. Stuart Evett. Mr. Gnerro, who has previously taught at Loyola, is completing his doctoral work at Catholic University and Mr. Evett, a Ph.D. candidate, comes to Loyola from Vanderbilt.

The ever-changing Theology Department has added Mr. Stanley Fiore, who is completing his Ph. D. at Catholic U. in Religious Education, and hopes to greet Mr. Leonard Silos, who is not yet in this country. He has been studying at the Institute Catholique in Paris.

Language Lab
In addition to a new language lab, the Modern Language Department this year will be joined by Mrs. Teresa A. Batto, whose primary concern will be the handling of the new lab, and by Mr. John J. Mayer as an assistant professor, who comes to Loyola from a similar position at Ithaca College.

Math Gains Ph.D.
Those hardy souls who study mathematics will also find new faces among this year's faculty.

Fr. James Alonso, with his Ph.D. from the University of Cincinnati, will be an assistant professor and Miss Marilyn Power, having completed Master's requirements at Georgetown, will join the department as an instructor.

Fr. James Salmon becomes an assistant professor in our Chemistry department following a post-doctoral year at Ohio State University.

Social Sciences
Mr. Frank Fairbank, as an assistant professor of education, will become the director of the student teaching program. Mr. Fairbank is a former principal from the Baltimore County Public School System.

Mr. William Doyle, who has previously taught at the Evening College, will direct the under-graduate psychology program.

Mr. Joseph Varesi, coming with his Masters Degree from Notre Dame, will be an instructor in Sociology this year.

Mrs. Eleanor Gubins, a doctoral candidate at Johns Hopkins, will be a new addition to the Political Science faculty in the role of instructor.

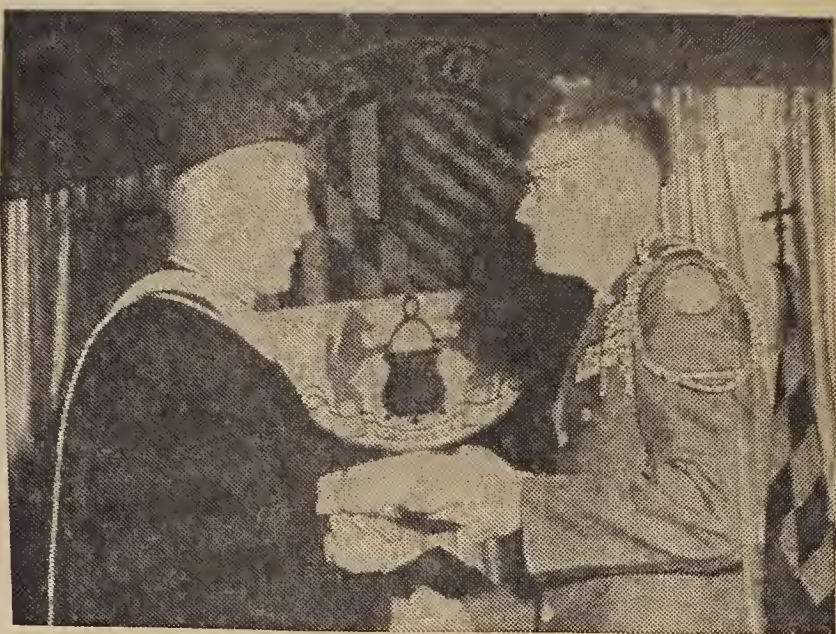

Philosopher
Rounding out the new faces from the "front of the room" this year will be Mr. Stephen McClure, S.J., who comes from Fordham University to the Philosophy Department as an instructor.

Four Faculty Members Given Departmental Promotions

Four members of the faculty have been promoted within their departments.

Dr. Charles R. Graham, formerly Instructor in Biology, has been raised to Assistant Professor in the Department of Biology.

The Reverend George S. Smardon, S.J., was promoted from the rank of Instructor to Assistant

Rev. Joseph Sellinger, S.J., hands Cadet Harry Merriken, '69, the award for obtaining the highest average in the Military History course offered in sophomore year by the ROTC.

ROTC Leadership Lab Dons New Look; Physical Conditioning Emphasized

This year the Military Science Department has devised a new program for leadership laboratory. Colonel Donald B. Wentzel, Professor of Military Science, formulated the program which will stress physical training more than ever before.

The cadets will be organized into a guerrilla battalion comprised of five companies, including a Ranger company and Leadership Company. L Company, consisting exclusively of MS III's, was initially formed last year to provide a sound preparation for summer camp.

One of the significant innovations is that all cadets will be issued fatigue uniforms which will be worn during leadership lab. Wearing fatigues, as opposed to the class "A" dress uniform, will allow the cadets greater participation in a wider variety of training subjects.

To handle the broadened training a Training Committee has been organized. It consists of a training officer, a special projects officer, and four instructors, all MS IV's.

Another of the changes is the time set for leadership lab. This year it will run from 8:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m. Heretofore, it had been held on Wednesday afternoons.

Two of the principal aims of the new program are to develop a sense of esprit d' corps in the cadets of each company and to stir up competition between the companies.

Greater flexibility in the areas of training coupled with the initiative of the cadets themselves are the outstanding characteristics of this year's leadership laboratory.

hits, "Good-bye Baby" and "More, More, More of Your Love." A release, "Illusions", will come out any day and is expected to be as successful as their past efforts.

Tickets will be available to the student body this week in the lobby of the Student Center at a price of four dollars per couple. To accommodate the near 1,000 students, the cafeteria as well as the gym will be utilized for the dance.

"Encounter '68" Replaces Retreats; Offers Wide Choice of Experiences

"Encounter '68," one of the many changes which greet the student body this year, is a new retreat program which allows students to choose their own method of fulfilling their religious requirements from a list of eight possible religious experiences.

Father Wallace Jungers, S.J., the director of "Encounter", has set up a wide variety of choices ranging from a closed retreat at Manresa to discussion groups using the facilities of the new dormitory, Hammerman House. According to Fr. Jungers "Encounter '68" is a great step forward in the expression of religious feeling on the campus.

He points to the excellent results which programs similar to this have realized at other colleges and universities, in particular Loyola of Chicago. Selection of programs should be submitted to the Dean of Men's office as soon as possible to allow for scheduling favorable to the students.

The program is an outgrowth of discussions held this summer by the Religious Affairs Committee. Upon the success of this year's program will depend whether or not Loyola will progress to a voluntary program of the same nature next year.

Nearly Perfect

Summer mail brought word that the fall semester would not commence in the customary manner. Coincidentally enough, the 1967-68 academic year began academically.

This is a departure from past years' policy which required that the students endure three days of religious renewal. In general, this time had been given to such stimulating exercises as sleeping through conferences, daydreaming through meditation, and reciting the rosary.

With thanks to the Religious Affairs Committee, the aforementioned program can be spoken of in the past tense. Under the capable leadership of Rev. Wallace Jungers, S.J., the Committee has designed a spiritual renewal so oriented as to allow for student individuality.

"Encounter '68," as the program is called, is one of the most forward-looking of religious programs on Catholic college campuses, or of programs of any type at Evergreen. "Encounter" affords the student the opportunity to partake of as much or as little religious experience as he feels necessary.

Again, the student may choose the type of experience which he feels will be most rewarding. For the first time, the Loyola College Student is acknowledged to possess some measure of responsibility, at least in the area of his faith.

"Encounter '68" deviates from the ideal in only one respect.

In contrast to the freedom of the program's design is its compulsory nature. It is the hope of the Religious Affairs Committee that the program will be offered voluntarily in the future. Moreover this hope was also expressed this year. However, the Religious Affairs Committee, as do many other committees on this campus, operates in a merely advisory capacity.

Several members of the Religious Affairs Committee have told the GREYHOUND that the committee had voted unanimously for a voluntary "Encounter '68." When asked to comment, Father Driscoll, S.J., Chairman of the Religious Affairs Committee, stated that the decisions of the committee were privileged information.

In fact, the Religious Affairs Committee was aware that anything they might say would be advice on the ultimate course of action to be taken. We are curious as to why such a consensus of opinion from the body which gave life to "Encounter" should have gone unheeded. Doubt is cast on the competency of the committee in this area. How could this be done after the committee had done such a masterful job in every other conceivable aspect of the program? No reason has been given for this action.

It seems that the President of the College has overlooked the fact that he is dealing with college students, who if presented with may even condone it. Perhaps the President a sufficient reason for any course of action feels that the climate of the Midwest is more conducive to maturity than is that of the East Coast. ("Encounter '68" is patterned after successful program held at both Loyola University of Chicago and Marquette University.)

Upon the success of this year's program rests the decision for a voluntary "Encounter '69" or a reversion to the retreats of the past. We would therefore urge the students to participate with an enthusiasm equal to that which went into the program's design.

Vietnam Summer in Baltimore Area Ends With Four Hour Open Hearing

Dave Townsend

The climax of the Vietnam Summer program in the Baltimore area came on September 13. Representative Samuel Friedel (Dem., Md.) held a four hour open hearing on the Vietnam Conflict at Pimlico Junior High.

Scheduling open hearings with U. S. Congressmen was one of the major goals of the Vietnam Summer project set last spring at Harvard University. A significantly critical audience listened patiently as a panel of twelve experts presented ten minute speeches and responded to a ten minute barrage of questions from other members of the panel.

As the debates wore on, two major problems were realized. Those experts evidently supporting the administration's policy continually dodged questions, resorting to counter questions and slogans as a substitute for answers. Those experts evidently opposed to the administration's policy became unduly emotional and startlingly ad hominem in their questions and replies.

The hearing ended after questions from the floor. A housewife, Mrs. Gerald Hoffman, liked the "whole idea of getting people together to discuss this." John Suruda, a seminarian from Woodstock felt that it was "good that it happened;" he discussed the need of a psychological breakthrough to get people talking about our role in Vietnam.

An instructor at Morgan State, Marsha Cummins replied, "We hope that this meeting will influence Mr. Friedel to vote against present government policy and initiate action in Congress to end the war." Streett Coale, a junior at Harvard felt, "It did accomplish something and in a manner contingent with the democratic process." Professor Karwaki, instructor of Oriental History at Towson State had a different opinion. When asked if he thought the meeting was beneficial he replied, "No. This is why government experts have refused to participate in open forums. It has developed such that there is no longer an exchange of fact but rather an exchange of emotional opinion."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editors:

In an attempt to aid each student at the college to further his personal religious renewal, Loyola is offering Encounter '68, a program of diverse and varied opportunities for religious experience. At registration, brochures describing the eight planned spiritual exercises were distributed to members of the day and evening college. Students were asked to indicate their choice of program on the post card accompanying the brochure and return the card to me. Rather than participate in one of the Encounter programs, students may prefer to make a traditional closed retreat. They also have the freedom to structure their own days or evenings of spiritual renewal.

Despite the college's efforts at presenting an imaginative and meaningful series of religious exercises, student response has been minimal. May I encourage each person at Loyola to choose the program which will help you best and then to inform me of your choice as soon as possible via the brochure post card so that participants and speakers can be contacted?

Gratefully Yours,
Rev. Wallace Jungers, S.J.

To the Editors:

We wish to serve public notice that contrary to the erroneous report of page sixty of the 1967 Loyola Evergreen, the Loyola Young Democrats did not support Mr. Agnew for Governor. Quite to the contrary, by an eight to one vote held prior to the November election we agreed that the club endorse the regular Democratic nominee, George P. Mahoney.

This year the Green & Grey Boosters plan to win their first intramural game. A gala victory celebration has been planned for the occasion and many members have been holding practice (celebration) sessions.

In their three-year football, basketball, and softball intramural history, the G & G Strings have compiled a 0-19-1 record.

On the social side, G & G members have been planning their third annual Blast to be held in honor of all new members, living, and deceased. Suggestions are being entertained for big name bands for the annual Xmas Dance. Girls will be solicited this year to join the ever-growing band of cheerleaders. Last year the cheerleaders compiled a 0-0-0 record.

In the realm of art, the G & G has initiated art classes for all members. A passing mark of B+ is required in order to draw any creative posters.

Contestants are asked to sign up now for the G & G annual Turtle Race. Rumor has it that the Hare will not put in an appearance this year.

The Dean has prohibited the raffling of girls this year; therefore, the G & G will be giving them away.

The annual G & G Drive-in Picnic has been postponed due to money problems. Also, the Annual Indoor (intra-office) Volleyball Tournament has been postponed (until the Dean's vacation).

County Fair Set For Friday; Organizations Seek Members

On Friday, September 29, the Association for Student Organizations will hold its annual County Fair. It will be staged along the fence facing the Student Center and the Gymnasium, between the hours of 11:00 a.m. and 12:00 noon.

The Fair will feature displays of the various student activities in order to familiarize the students, the freshmen in particular, of the functions of the numerous campus organizations.

During this exhibition, officers and representatives from the specific organizations will be available to answer any questions that prospective members may have concerning membership requirements, dues, regulations, and any programs the groups have planned for the coming year.

All activities desiring to exhibit should contact Marc Oken '68, to arrange for a location for their particular display. In the event of rain the exhibit will be held in the Gymnasium.

Loyola, Notre Dame, and Mount Unveil Seven-Flick Seminar Slate

Loyola College will again join with Notre Dame and Mt. St. Agnes to present a series of internationally honored films.

The purpose of the Film Seminar according to Gerry Smith '68, Loyola Coordinator, is to lead the viewer to a deeper appreciation of the good and the best in films and thereby make more enjoyable the regular excursion into the world of the cinema arts.

The capacity for enjoyment is developed according to Smith, not only by viewing but also by discussing and criticizing the best a particular art has to offer. The significant films presented he said, will therefore be complemented on occasion by speakers and critics. Informal discussions will follow each film.

Subscriptions to the entire series are available for $3.50. Admission to individual films may be obtained at a price of 75 cents. Loyola students may gain entry to separate films for 25 cents with a Student Activities card.

All programs begin at 7:45 p.m.

Debaters Prep For Tournaments; Seek Members

The Robert Bellarmine Debating Society of Loyola College is scheduling individual tryouts for the 1967-1968 intercollegiate debating season.

Interested students should contact John Delaney, President of the Society, or Dick Fleming, debate coach.

The Novice, Jayvee, and Varsity teams will participate in 14 tournaments this coming season, highlighted by the Loyola National Invitational, the Mardi Gras National Tournament, and the District Eliminations for the National finals.

The team has openings at all three levels in addition to needing typists, researchers, and administrators for the Loyola National.

Meetings are held in the evenings in the Debate office in Cohn Hall, Room C-2.

Student Government Expands Powers; Undertakes Activity Budget Control

Although the Evergreen Campus was vacated by its students this summer, nevertheless the Student Government continued to function. President William I. Weston's Administration directed a concerted effort to gain control of the budget allotted by the College Administration for distribution to the various student organizations and activities.

The SG's aim was to secure the power to appropriate funds to these student activities. Its efforts have met with considerable success.

A new Recreation program, new officers, and a new office are among highlights of the upcoming year for the LSSA.

The LSSA is a student-run, student-organized program designed to promote a better world on and off campus. Off campus, the LSSA is engaged in tutoring underprivileged children in West Baltimore, working in the Emergency Room and Labs at St. Joseph Hospital and sponsoring a Scout troop and Cub Pack.

This year, a Recreation Program is being planned under the leadership of Jim Brennan '69. Other projects heads include Bill Mester '70, and Gerry Kenny '69 of Notre Dame heading up the Tutoring Program; Paul Morganstein '69 in charge of the Paramedics; and John Manrodt '69 leading the Scouting program.

New officers are Charles "Hawk" Hawkins '68, chairman; Joe Ciotta '69, first vice-chairman; and Ed Fishel '69, second vice-chairman.

Besides the new program, the LSSA has been given a new office, Room M-25 in Millbrook House above the Alumni offices. According to LSSA officers, this new location is already becoming a meeting place for students and faculty alike for open and fresh conversation.

This, according to officers, is part of the group's attempt to create a better world on campus. Any student is welcome at anytime the officers said, to study, watch television, or enter into conversation. In addition, the group might mean finances for re-im-busing drivers for their expenses.

Students who want to join by giving a few hours a week of time to tutor or to work in a hospital or to lead a Scout group, or to organize activities for underprivileged children should visit the New LSSA Office in Millbrook.

On September 15, a joint meeting between representatives from the LSSA, Notre Dame, Mt. St. Agnes, and Villa Julie met in the Alumni Rathskeller to discuss further co-operation between social action programs and the students on the respective campuses.

The need for male tutors and Loyola men to drive the women tutors was discussed. Essentially, this would require only a few hours on one evening of the week. The drivers would pick-up the coeds at their dorm and return them there after their tutoring.

In addition, the representatives promised further co-operation between the respective campuses and planned combined social events for participating students.

This summer, the LSSA joined the ECHO HOUSE FOUNDATION to form the largest tutorial program in Baltimore. This social action project is to be called the Volunteer Improvement Program (VIP). Already, according to LSSA officers, VIP has been hailed by city officials as one of the major assets to the West Baltimore Social Action Program.

Interested in the success of the volunteer work of the Loyola group, the Office for Economic Opportunity (OEO) is considering a $10,000 grant for the LSSA. Because of the recent city rioting, this grant has been temporarily held up. If it is granted, this

The Student Government's ability to direct the funnelling of finances bears some interesting implications. In effect, the SG has become the monetary middleman between the Administration's treasure chest and the student activity leaders who must present their respective budget requests. With the SG as the sole bargaining agent, the Administration will no longer have to deal with individual budgets.

A significant innovation this year is the Student Government Contingency Fund amounting to 10% of the total Administration budget allotment. This is a type of emergency fund which the SG can dole whenever and to whom-ever it deems.

An example of the SG's appropriating funds is the $1,000.00 hike given to the Gorman Lecture Series this year. This amounts to a 33% increase in the Gorman budget.

Another novelty is the Student Government Activities Card. Presentation of this card plus 25c entitles the student admission to a film in the Film Seminar. This is a 50c savings over last year.

Finally, the SG will issue a Student Directory by the first week in October. For the first time in many years the SG will give to all students a list of names, addresses, and telephone numbers of every member of the student body.

On Saturday, September 30 the Sophomore class will present the annual Freshman Welcome Dance in the Andrew White Student Center from 9:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m. This year's dance, the students' official welcome to the new students, will feature Bob Brady and the Con 'Chords.'
